

On January 30, 1939, Hitler once again solemnly declares that he recognizes the rights of Poland in the Corridor. In the summer of 39, however, he lays claim to Danzig and a corridor through the Corridor. Poland rejects this suggestion, grown mistrustful through the fate of Czechoslovakia. At the end of August, Hitler demands that Poland send a negotiator equipped with all powers of attorney, who is to negotiate (?) absolutely alone with Hitler, similar to the case with Czech Prime Minister Hácha. Poland refuses. Now Germany opens hostilities and declares subsequently the accommodating suggestions it wanted to make! Does Hitler want peace?

After the destruction of Poland, Hitler declares, as a so-called peace offering, that he also demands, aside from Poland, a fair share of the earth's natural resources. What does Hitler understand as fair? He ought to have at least expressed himself more clearly! Does Hitler want peace?

The absolutely peaceful countries of Denmark and Norway are conquered. After these experiences, Belgium and Holland muster more troops to protect their neutrality, on the German border and on the coast. This is taken as a welcome pretext to conquer these countries too! Does Hitler want peace?

Through an unprecedentedly great sacrifice, and thanks to the heroic German soldiers, France is wrestled to the ground. But instead of concluding an honorable peace, which would probably have motivated England to concede as well, they dictate a ceasefire in comparison to which Versailles was child's play! Does Hitler want peace?

No!! Hitler and those who commissioned him, the gentlemen of coal and iron, want war now and in the future!

Even if Germany also defeats England and America, the costs of this war are already so high (to say nothing of the huge sacrifice of blood) that we will have to pay just as much after the war as our opponents. To whom will we have to pay? To the major industrialists who win every war!

People of Germany, change your minds before it's too late. Topple the Nazi plutocracy as long as you are still powerful enough to bring about lasting world peace.

The Germans are marching victorious across Europe!

Poland was defeated in 18 days, Denmark has been conquered. Norway occupied in a matter of weeks. Holland has been conquered, Belgium defeated in 18 days. And finally, France destroyed in six weeks!

The prime of our nation has been sacrificed!

For what? Perhaps for the future of the German nation? Or for peace in Europe? No!!

All of Hitler's actions for the so-called "reconstruction of Europe" bear the germ of new wars within them. One cannot suppress nations forever; grim repercussions are inevitable! No one can halt the pendulum of world history!

Does Hitler want peace?

On October 1, 1938, the Sudetenland is annexed to Germany, based on the nations' right to self-determination, through the concessions of France and England, which are unprecedented in their extent. On March 16, 1939, Czech Bohemia and Moravia are occupied in defiance of this same right! Does Hitler want peace?
